SOUTH CAROLINA AND KENTUCKY GOODWINS.

Robert Goodwin resided in South Carolina, probably in or near Greenville. I can get absolutely no information concerning his ancestry, but the Howard and the Griffith families, with which his descendants intermarried, came from Maryland to South Carolina, and perhaps Robert came from that State. He was born about 1735, and was a farmer and miller. He died in South Carolina. It is thought that he had still another son who remained in South Carolina. All of the children here given removed to Tennessee and Kentucky and lost trace of the son who is said to have remained at home. Children: i. Jesse, born about 1760, married, first, —, second, Susannah Howard; ii. Samuel, married —, and left issue, untraced; iii. * Mr. G. N. Hobbs writes, while visiting in Greenville, S. C., that this town was the home of the Goodwins, and that the name was also spelled Goodwyn; that Edward Howard, father of Susannah, died there, and that Goodwin's mills are still known in the county. He also finds court records (May 7, 1792) of Joseph Goodwin and Frances his wife. I cannot yet "place" Joseph, unless he was the son who remained in South Carolina.

SOUTH CAROLINA, KENTUCKY, TENNESSEE AND MISSISSIPPI GOODWINS.

George Goodwin cannot be positively identified from the conflicting data received. A grandson states that George was born in Virginia in 1798, moved to South Carolina; then to Hopkins county, Ky.; later to Tipton county, Tenn., and finally to Fayette county, Miss., where he died in 1863, aged sixty-five years. On page 100 of the 1897 Supplement, at the end of the fourth line, appears the name of George Goodwin, younger brother to Jesse, who was born in 1796, and the data above given would strongly tend to show that the George who died in 1862, aged sixty-five, born therefore in 1798, was the George who was the next younger brother to Jesse, born 1796,* especially as the families seem to have moved along the same general lines and the given names are repeated in the two branches. The data sent by Crawford Goodwin, son of George, would seem to disprove this relationship, for, according to him (and his own birth in 1820, the tenth child of George confirms his statement), his father, George Goodwin, was born in 1782 in South Carolina, a son of a Revolutionary soldier, and there married Polly Mitchell, whose proper name is given me as Rebecca Mitchell and removed to Christian county, Ky., about 1819, as his son George was born in South Carolina in 1818; his son James Martin in Hopkinsville, Christian county, Ky., in 1819, and George then removed to Calloway county, Ky., his son Crawford being born there in 1820. In 1824 or 1825 he removed to Tipton county, Tenn., and remained there until 1834, when he settled in Fayette county, Miss., where he died in 1862. He was a famous hunter of the mighty game which inhabited the Mississippi Valley in those early days. In addition to farming he was also a miller, and this, together with the name Greenberry given to a son, would indicate
